Population of the Boer Nation

The Boer population is estimated at around 1.5 million out of a total White Afrikaans or Afrikaner population of about 3.5 million. This article [it refers to an article by Pology Magazin, ed.] from about 5 years ago [2005, ed.] lists this number. The fact that the Boer population is the smaller segment of the White Afrikaans population demonstrates that the Boers are marginalized under any umbrella macro designation [like Afrikaner] referring to White Afrikaans speakers in general & as such any attempts the actual Boer people make from time to time to find self determination is often erroneously even maliciously labeled as an "extremist" segment of a non existent monolithic population which was a technique started with the Maritz Rebellion of 1914 [ie: it was a Boer movement not an Afrikaner one] & continued up to the present. Just imagine the obvious absurdity of asserting that Canadians are "extremist" for exercising [or even seeking to pursue] self determination outside of the context of the bulk of the North American population.
