

The Blackwash, a small South African black nationalist group (with policies similar to those of the PAC - Pan Africanist Congress of Azania – for which all African continent belongs only to blacks), held its own meeting for discussion and compare, the September National Imbizo (SNI), in Soweto, 24 to 26 September 2010.

The Blackwash understand only one type of bond based on belonging to the black race. For it there aren't peoples and nations, but only races.

All whites - without historical and national distinction - are considered invaders, usurpers and exploiters, the origin of all evil for the blacks. The Blackwash consider the Christian faith and its values, foreign elements for Africa and for the black race. However, propaganda of Blackwash, rather ironically, is diffused in English...
