

In recent days, some journalists of the Beeld visited a “ Museum of the Boer genocide ” in Pootchefstroom, set up by a member of the AWB (Afrikaner Weerstandsbeweging, the Afrikaner Resistance Movement). The images of the Boer genocide, still in progress, do not seem procured particular emotions in them. Instead, they were shocked in seeing the AWB’s flag waving outside the house. Hence: the Boer genocide doesn’t bother them, a nationalist and Christian flag does it. That should make us to reflect.

The faith that animates the people who ignore a (true) genocide and feel indignation in front of a nationalist and Christian flag, is certainly anti-nationalist and anti-Christian; then it can take many forms and names: communism, capitalism, Judaism, humanism, liberalism, etc.

Some people, sometimes, with regard to certain flags and symbols, justifying the anti-nationalist and anti-Christian theories; or because they are influenced by it (sometimes unconsciously), or because they hope that some concessions will appease the wrath of the enemy and his slanders. Let it be clear to all: the anti-nationalist and anti-Christian forces will never accept nationalist and / or Christians symbols; both old and new, inspired by the sun, the luck, the history, the nation, or the Trinity. Because they detest all that it represents or are call to represents.

Other examples.

Wednesday 6th October, in Pretoria, it is started the Appeal against the bail granted to one of the assassins of Eugene Terre’Blanche , the historical leader of the AWB. Some journalists of SAPA (South African Press Association), according to what they wrote, seem to have more troubled in front to khaki uniforms worn by some AWB’s members that in front to a murderer, who killed an elderly man in a horrible and inhumane way. Why they were afraid in presence of Christian nationalists, and not in presence of a murderer? But most of all:

is afraid in the presence of Christian nationalists, and not in the presence of an assassin?

It’s important noting that this aversion isn’t for uniforms in general, or for paramilitary organizations in general, as it isn’t an issue about the color of the uniforms or about acronyms of the organizations. This aversion is absolutely specific: for the Christian nationalists. Uniforms and armed forces are appreciated, but only when they work against the nations and Christianity. Who is trying to confuse and divide, and ask to leave the Truth and Nature for a compromise with Evil, try to reduce everything to a problem with symbols and colors. But how many colors and symbols is it necessary to renounces, to do the will of the Antichrist's forces?

In reference to the arrest of Boers patriots at Balmoral , the 30th September 2010, the list of material seized by police were also marked some Vierkleurs, Vierkleur is the flag of the Zuid Afrikaanse Republiek (literally, "Republic of South Africa", the late Boer republic in the Transvaal region). The same Vierkleur is now vilified and criminalized.

No wonder. It's always happened this way, for symbols and men, everywhere. They falsify history, criminalize ideas, defame people. We cite only one human case: who can forget all they have done, said and written, against Terre'Blanche?

The enemy will stop attacking, killing and slander, only those who will go on his same side. Only those who will carry the colors and the symbols of his forces: the hammer and sickle, and the six-pointed star. Only those who accept his mark, 666.
