

The ANC, on behalf its deputy secretary-general Thandi Modise, has appealed against the decision of Johannesburg High Court Judge Leon Halgryn, which declared unconstitutional and unlawful the ANC’s song “Shoot the Boer”.

The ANC believes that this song, which calls for the extermination of a specific nation, be part of its history and its struggle. It’s true: a history of hate, a struggle for to chain together all the nations of southern Africa. The Boer nation has right to survival, and to its independence, even and especially by those who want to exterminate it.
